About Stone Storm

One line

Fling characterful projectiles from a catapult to topple cartoon fortresses and defeat the enemy archers before they shoot down your soldiers.

Story

The Iron Baron has seized the eight realms and filled them with fortresses manned by his Redcap Archers. The Vanguard, a small band of brave, round-bellied soldiers, marches to take the land back. They have one catapult and four unlikely heroes to load into it:

Hero	Projectile	Personality
Rocky	Stone	Grumpy, dependable, hits like a truck
Blaze	Fire pot	Hot-headed and impatient, sets wood ablaze
Boomer	Bomb	Cheerful, short fuse, loves loud noises
Twister	Cyclone	Dizzy, giggly, a little whirlwind that lifts everything

Each realm ends at a bigger fortress. The last one is the Baron's Iron Citadel.

Audience

- Casual mobile players aged 13+ (the store listing targets 13+ so we stay out of the Google Play Families programme and its stricter ad rules; the content itself is cartoon and family friendly).
- Short sessions: one level takes 30–90 seconds.

Design pillars

1. Satisfying destruction. Every hit should look, sound and feel heavy: shake, dust, splinters, creaks, slow-motion collapses.
2. Readable at a glance. Bright colours, thick outlines, clear materials (wood = brown planks, stone = grey bricks, ice/glass none in v1), enemies always visible.
3. A little pressure. Archers shoot back between your shots. Taking them out first matters.
4. Characters with personality. Projectiles, soldiers and archers blink, react and taunt.
5. Fair monetisation. The whole campaign can be finished without paying. Ads are opt-in (rewarded) except a capped interstitial between levels, which "Remove Ads" removes.

Platform

Android phones and tablets, landscape, Android 7.0+ (API 24) minimum, OpenGL ES 3.0. Distributed on Google Play only.